

The opportunity...

Historically, the market capitalization of a country's stock exchange trades roughly at parity with the nominal GDP for developed nations during periods where interest rates are not punitively high.